

Dear Members of IEEE Tokyo Section

I would like to express my deepest gratitude to all the members of IEEE Tokyo Section, who have been making a great and constant effort in various activities of the section.

Unfortunately, spread of the novel coronavirus has still been like wildfire. I surmise everyone is forced themselves to staying at home and living inconvenient and insecure lives every day.

Given the circumstances that coerce us into making a considerable change to the schedule and ways of our regular events, as well as the deferment of the celebration ceremony for the 2020 New Fellows and lectures, IEEE Tokyo Section held an online version of the 2020 Annual General Assembly of Tokyo Section on April 3. High chances are that we still have to have various upcoming events being postponed, suspended or held online. Though this can cause big trouble to participants, we will contrive to keep our activities made happen, taking advantage of things like web and email, and provide information on the upcoming events. I hope your great and constant support to our body in the future.

Please do not hesitate to contact us at tokyosec@ieee-jp.org, if you have any questions, requests or suggestion.

April 30, 2020 (Date of issue)

The IEEE Tokyo Section Chair, Hideyuki TOKUDA

"Never Forget to Renew Your Membership"

Have you updated your IEEE membership in 2020?

It is said that changes in social structure will accelerate as a result of the worldwide spread of this new coronavirus infection. Many people are thinking about what technology should be, and some has started taking actions, in order to overcome global threats such as infectious diseases and climate change, and realize a truly safe, peaceful, and comfortable society. Having online access to information and data, and knowledge and wisdom of human networks that have been accumulated and updated by the IEEE over the years, should be of great value especially in situations where physical contact among people is limited. Please do not forget to renew your IEEE membership and let's continue to take part in development of technology in the world.

* How to renew membership

Please register for an account on the IEEE headquarters website (*1) and follow the renewal procedure on the membership renewal page (*2). You can also set automatic renewal, which skips the annual renewal procedure.
