The 1st Lecture Meeting of Tokyo Section in 2023

On Friday, March 17th, from 16:20 to 17:30, the Tokyo Section Technical Program Committee (TPC) hosted the 2023 1st Tokyo Section Lecture Meeting with a local hybrid of the Zoom Webinar virtual meeting system

The venue was Kikai Shinko Kaikan, and approximately 43 people participated, including local and online participants. Mr. Masaru KITO, Kioxia Corporation, Advanced Memory Development Center, who received IEEE Andrew S. Grove Award in 2021, was invited to give a lecture entitled "Ultra High Density 3D Flash Memory: Development and Future Outlook". Mr. Masaru KITO gave a lecture on the trends in increasing capacity of flash memory, and 3D flash memory BiCS FLASH™ which enable large capacity with low cost. He also mentioned outlook of technologies for further increasement in capacity.

This time we held the lecture meeting at the local venue with an online hybrid using Zoom Webinar as same as Tokyo section general meeting held on the same day. In 2022, almost all of the lecture meetings were virtual online. This year we will hold more hybrid meetings to facilitate communication.
